ABSTRACT

The people a user is presumed to know or be associated with may be determined using a number of techniques. For example, the people within a certain number of degrees of separation from the user may be considered as known to the user. This information about people that the user knows is used in relation to the user's communications.

5

40175979.doc